

Your Face-to-Face Class Switched to Online... What Does This Mean for You?

The class will now be held virtually online instead of on-campus, via a program such as Canvas Conferences or another program of the professor's choosing. You still need to be available during the scheduled days and times for the virtual class. The professor will provide more details about how the class will be structured.

Do I need to drop the class and re-register for a different section?

No, your class will automatically convert to an online class. You do not need to change your course registration or enrollment status.

Will this affect the tuition amount for the class?

No, your tuition will remain the same.

Will I still need to go to campus for any part of the class?

No, you will not be required to go to campus to complete any portion of the class. However, please note the difference between "online" and "live online" courses below.

Online: Instructors post class material such as lectures, presentations, notes and readings in Canvas, through myFSCJ. Classes converted to this format will be displayed in the room location on your schedule as: "Online - All activities online." Instructors interact with students through posts and emails, but generally do not meet the class as a group in real time.
